SUMMER’S OVER ALREADY, BUT THERE’S LOTS TO DO!  by Chip Larouche, Treasurer

If you missed the Nikkei Community Picnic at Oaks Amusement Park on Sunday, August 21st, you missed a good one. The crowd was a bit smaller than years past, perhaps 300 people, and I suspect that the closure of two bridges that day may have discouraged a few folks from the West side, but those who did make it, including Consul General of Japan, Kojiro Uchiyama and his wife Karen, were treated to a lot of fun, a lot of prizes, great food and a lovely, sunny and 80-degree afternoon.

The only element of sadness at the event was that Mrs. Nobi Masuoka wasn’t in charge of the food line like she has been for more than 25 years. Mrs. Masuoka passed away earlier in the month at the age of 91. Her energy and infectious enthusiasm will certainly be missed by the entire community, and the board joins me in expressing our heartfelt condolences to the Masuoka family.

As our youth head back to school, it’s not too early to start thinking about scholarships. Portland JACL has just posted the scholarship application for our local community scholarships which usually awards over $16,000 in scholarships on its webpage (www.pdxjacl.org). These scholarships are awarded at the Community Graduation Banquet that will be held on May 7, 2017. In addition, National JACL will shortly post their scholarship application online for their annual scholarships that normally total $70,000. These scholarships will be awarded in August 2017. For the Community Scholarships, students or their parents must be members of one of the 11 sponsoring organizations (listed on the application) no later than October 15 this year. National JACL scholarships require the students to be members of a JACL Chapter at any time before submitting the application, but students who have been members and participated in activities for a longer period of time are more competitive for these scholarships.

Now that the Olympics are over, there will be more media attention devoted to the upcoming elections. This year, in addition to the choices we will have for the candidates themselves, there will be a number of ballot measures that are complicated enough that Portland JACL, in coordination with the Portland Lodge of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance will hold a forum on Sunday, October 23rd in the basement of the Oregon Buddhist Temple to discuss these ballot measures for everyone who is interested in having a dialog on the issues.

Even if you’ve already made up your mind about the ballot measures, come on down anyway for the refreshments. We hope to see many of you there!

A STAMP PROPOSAL TO HONOR NISEI AMERICAN SOLDIERS DURING WWII

There is a proposal current under consideration at the Postal Service that would honor the American patriotism of Japanese American soldiers.

The stamp subject would show the National Japanese American Memorial to Patriotism During World War II. This memorial, tells the story of the Nisei soldiers in the context of the ten major American concentration camps from which many of these soldiers were recruited and where they left their families to fight for American during WWII.

How can you help? It appears right now that the effort is being focused on getting Congressman Walden of Oregon to sign on to support this proposal.

Emails supporting this stamp can either be sent to the Congressman directly via his website:

https://walden.house.gov/contact-greg/email-me or to contact two either of the two Congressman’s aides:

Nolan Ahern (Nolan.Ahern@mail.house.gov) or Kristen Shatynski (Kristen.Shatynski@mail.house.gov).

We can’t think of a better way to honor these Nisei soldiers at this time. Thanks for your consideration!
JERRY INOUE GOLF TOURNAMENT: IT’S A WRAP!

by Sharon Takahashi, Japanese Ancestral Society President

On July 31, we were blessed with great weather, good friends, and friendly competition for the Japanese Ancestral Society’s Jerry Inouye Golf Tournament. Sixteen years ago, the JAS chose to honor Jerry for his community-building and unique talent of gathering volunteers for his service “army.”

The women’s flight was the largest this year with 25 golfers. Katie Tamiyasu came in first with a net score of 63, followed by Pat Gilman (net 65) and Pat Schwindt (net 66). Pat Schwindt and Katie Tamiyasu tied for low gross honors with a score of 90, but a lower handicap gave Pat the honor.

The B Flight golfers didn’t confuse us with ties, luckily. First place went to Carl Kato (net 62), second Ron Hiromura (net 66) and third Tom Fujii (net 67). Low gross was Carl Kato with a score of 86.

The golfer with the mightiest arm who carries home the perpetual trophy for the whole year (also known as the grand champion) is Carl Kato.

This year we had 72 golfers in the field, thanks to the golf committee who networked with the Oregon Nisei Women’s and Oregon Nisei Men’s Golf Club. Membership in the Japanese Ancestral Society is a prerequisite for golfing in the tournament. For more information, check out our website: www.japaneseancestralsociety.org

We would like to thank the following businesses for their contributions to our event: Broadmoor Golf, Chinese Village, Dr. Connie Masuoka, Dr. Dale Ogata, Eastmoreland Golf, Friends of Japan in Oregon, Glendoveer Golf, Hakatamon, Japanese Garden Society, Japanese Ancestral Society, Kirin Brew USA, Koji Osakaya, Lewis River Golf, Meeka Resaurant, Onpoint Credit Union, Ota Family Tofu, Portland JACL, Quail Valley Golf, Rainbow Trophy, Rose City Cemetery, Rose City Golf, Sambi Restaurant, United Pacific, Yamasa Corporation, Yuuyake Shinbun, and 808 Grinds.

SCHOLARSHIP ESSAY

As part of the the 69th Annual Japanese American Community Graduation Banquet held in May, students were asked by the Scholarship Committee to write an essay.

Andrew Asakawa, International School of Beaverton

What do you think is the most pressing political or social issue currently facing the Japanese American and/or Asian American community?

One of the most pressing, current social issues facing the Asian American community is the growing loss of cultural identity, as Asian minorities try and blend into American society. This issue is especially acute with Japanese Americans, historically one of the oldest, and most prominent Asian minorities in the United States. Japanese Americans, according to the recent census, have the highest proportion of mixed raced individuals. The combination of being third, or fourth generation born in the United States and often being mixed race makes it difficult for people to truly identify with their common Japanese culture. Further as Japanese Americans "Americanize" people also forget what their ancestors have done to raise the position of Japanese Americans in society, which is a major sociocultural issue.

Further, this issue doesn’t only affect the leaders of the community, or the older generation, within my life I have struggled with my Japanese American identity. Often, it is easy to forget my roots and cultural background because it seems so far removed from my daily life. Being yosei means that my family doesn't uphold traditional cultural practices, or speak Japanese at home, and thus to fill these gaps in my identity I had find these aspects of culture in other areas of my life.

In confronting the issue of cultural identity I have, at every possible opportunity, jumped at the ability to learn more about my Japanese ancestry. For seven years I have been taking Japanese language courses, and gone to an international school that focuses on world understanding and cultural exploration. For instance, I have immersed myself in my school's Japanese National Honor Society, which focuses on exploring and sharing Japanese culture with the local Beaverton community. Language and culture aside I have also had the opportunity to understand the history of Japan and the historical significance of relations between Japan and America and of Japanese Americans. Through these various experiences, and a trip to Japan with peers a few years prior, I have pieced together my identity as Japanese American.

However, not all Japanese Americans are presented the opportunities that I have utilized to form my Japanese identity. It is through the educational opportunities and cultural events that I have attended that allowed me to shape my Japanese American identity. Therefore, I believe that in order to face this challenge the Japanese American community leaders should increase sociocultural educational opportunities. For instance, offering Japanese learning programs that are run by community volunteers would allow the younger Japanese American generation to identify with their common heritage.

Additionally, events held by the Japanese community that celebrate Japanese culture and identity would greatly help the issues of cultural and social identity. These actions are of great significance, since if current trends for identity continue the Japanese American community will slowly disappear. It is important that the Japanese American community retains its rich culture and history, and celebrates it, as we progress into the future.
