Nikkei Community Picnic 2014

Board Member’s Message by Connie Masuoka

Every year I think that the Nikkei Community Picnic could not be better than the previous year but each year it gets better. It was perfect weather and a fabulous day, with around 500 people in attendance it was one of our largest picnics.

We were roused by the performance of Portland Taiko. And during the public service portion of the program we were introduced to Rev. Anna Cho, the incoming minister at Epworth Methodist Church and our community’s newest Taiko group Unit Souzou.

We had great food from Oaks Park Special Fried Chicken to ice cold organic Hermiston watermelon and lots of tasty nigiri and sushi, salads, and desserts in between. As a special treat this year Unite People served up authentic shave ice with sweet red beans and or condensed milk and Konko Church cooked up delicious imagawayaki (small waffles with yummy fillings) on site. There were ride bracelets for the kids and BeeBee Tan-Beck was our face painting artist in residence. And what is a picnic without Bingo? We had lots of bingo called by Chris Lee, our newest and youngest member of the Portland JACL board, who did a fantastic job. In addition, there were raffle prizes galore. The grand prize this year was a pair of roundtrip tickets on Southwest Airlines, I don’t know who the winner was but I hope they have a nice trip planned.

And as always if you weren’t lucky enough to win a prize there was a special take home gift for you. Now don’t you wish you were there?

The Nikkei Community Picnic is one of the highlights of the year and is made possible through the generosity of many. The picnic would not be possible without the sponsorship of the Japanese American organizations, churches and temples. The Portland JACL, the Hiroshima Club, Nikkei Jin Kai (JAS), Veledas, Nikkei Fujin Kai, Johrei Fellowship, Oregon Buddhist Temple, Portland Taiko, Oregon Nikkei Endowment, Oregon Nisei Veterans, and Ikoi no Kai all help to sponsor this event. And in addition, there are many monetary and prize donations from community businesses.

and individuals. We would like to thank, Rich Iwasaki, Kurtis Inouye, Richard Hedlund, Riverview Abbey, Ota Tofu, Koida Nursery, Kirk Tambara, Yoji Matsushima, Chip and Setsy Larouche, Nobi Masuoka, Hiroshi's Anzen, Osakaya Restaurant, Ichidai Restaurant, Terry Kawamoto, Carl Itamura, Susan Leedham, Jean Yamamoto, Mas Yatabe, Masamichi Nitani, Rose City Mortuary, Dr. Jim and Amy Tsugawa, and True World Foods.

I would especially like to recognize the volunteers who make the picnic run smoothly, they are ones who make this event special. They include; Ken and Katie Kawazoe, Kay Endo, Nobi Masuoka, Kaneko Wagar, Tsuyako Monas, Chip and Setsy Larouche, Rich Iwasaki, Marleen Wallingford, Jason Setera, Chris Lee, and the members and family of Unite People.

We had lots of new faces at the picnic this year and some of them are life long Oregonians who were touched by the kimochi (deep feeling) of being part of a larger Nikkei community. Maybe you would like to know this feeling. The most important benefit of being a member of Portland JACL, Nikkei Jin Kai (JAS) or any of the other community organizations is to be engaged and enjoy the camaraderie of the Nikkei Community.

Please mark your calendars and be sure to join us Sunday, August 16, 2015 for the 27th Annual Nikkei Community Picnic at Oaks Park. We look forward to seeing you there.
San Jose Convention Reflections

by Connie Masuoka

On July 9, 2014, I was fortunate to accompany 10 youth members of Portland JACL’s Unite People to the JACL National Convention in San Jose, California. This is the fourth time Unite People has chosen to participate at the national convention and the first time they worked on presenting a workshop at the convention. This year the group facilitated a workshop, “Model Minority: Do the Math”, with Prof. Darby Li Po Price which discussed the Asian stereotypes and their inherent problems and pressures on young Asian Americans.

I am very proud of their work and the energy and enthusiasm in participating in the convention. The following are some of the reflections of those who attended the convention.

Abby Matsushima  Grant High School:

The 2014 JACL convention opened my mind to various number of social media stereotypes, both related to Asian stereotypes but also other non-American cultures. I never really thought about how Asians were played as a certain type in the media; but the lectures that were held, showed me how the public perceives Asians. I learned a lot about the discrimination that Asian face every day. I see myself playing into the stereotype as well; we all have different ways of seeing the issues our country. The JACL looks at problems from all angles.

My experiences at the convention were one of a kind. The memories I made will last a lifetime. I was given so many opportunities to branch out and expand my knowledge of having a voice. The JACL give so many young adults the opportunity to be apart of their communities and connect with people from all over the country. As one of the youngest youth chapters, United People represented a group of mature youth.

We led a workshop along with Darby Li-Po Price to talk about the issues of Asian stereotypes and school. Many Asians are said to be excellent at science and math but it is not always the case, they aren’t fitting the stereotype. I feel like I need to live up to the expectation at some points in time.

The JACL conference exposed the discrimination that Asian’s face in social media and in communities. A lecture included live polls within the room, it amazed me how big of a difference the youth reacted to social media discrimination and how the elderly reacted. There is an expectation that must be met and if it is not met then you are not “Asian.” I feel like I have a bigger voice after attending this conference. It taught we had to interact with people much older than me and how to handle discrimination on the daily basis.

Kirt Achterman, Central Catholic High School:

This year’s JACL convention was a fun and rewarding experience. I am grateful for the opportunity provided by JACL to attend the convention. I learned a lot while meeting many new people. I can only hope that next year’s convention is just as fun.

Running the Model Minority workshop with the rest of Unite People was a lot of fun, and a good experience. Being involved in the planning, and setup of the workshop was great practice. It’s not something I would normally do, and it was a bit out of my comfort zone, but sparking discussion and hearing every ones opinions was really fun. To run the workshop, we had to do a quite a bit of research on the topic of Model Minority, doing so we found how much it played a part in all of our lives. This was a great experience, and next year, I hope we can plan another workshop and do an even better job using our experience from this one.

Being from a younger generation, I found many of the topics at this year’s convention much easier to relate and connect to. The focus on Asians and stereotypes in media felt more meaningful to me because of how much my generation uses and relies on media. I see offensive things on T.V. all the time, and seeing them addressed and discussed at this convention was reassuring to me that other people notice and recognize it. The voting that we did was one of my favorite parts of the convention; it was fun and got me engaged in the meeting and topics. It was interesting to see the results of the voting, especially between the different generations. I think these things got me much more involved in meetings, and are going to inspire me to do much more with JACL throughout the year.

My favorite part of JACL conventions is meeting people. People come from all over the nation, and from many different backgrounds to attend these conventions. It’s interesting to hang out and talk to all the youth delegates from different states. I think while spending a week together at conventions, we form unique friendships, and I can’t wait to see all of them at next year’s convention.

Editor's note: There were other excellent essays that were not printed due to space constraints.

The Old and New Faces of Nuclear Weapons

by Marleen Wallingford

August 6th commemorates the 69th anniversary of the first and only time nuclear weapons were detonated on human populations. The United State government chose to unleash these super bombs because it was widely believed that this drastic action was necessary to bring an end to the war in the Pacific. Not only were thousands of people killed in an instant, the horror of the event traumatized many more Japanese citizens. The United States government still has to deal with the environmental disaster the production of these nuclear weapons have created. Oregon Physician's for Social Responsibility a non-profit organization which works to protect human life from threats to health has partnered with local Nikkei and peace and justice organizations to remember the hundreds of thousands of Japanese people who died and suffered because of man's inhumanity to man. As Chisao Hata, the emcee for this event, related, that all humans make choices and our choices can be good or bad. Chisao has participated in the remembrance activities since the 1980's and last year had an opportunity to perform at the annual commemoration in Hiroshima. She is also active in a group called, Ground Zero, which is committed to ending the use and proliferation of nuclear weapons.

Representative Earl Blumenauer who has worked to limit funding for nuclear weapons spoke about his efforts to move those monies from production to clean-up. Ann Wright, a former Army Colonel, and now peace activist advocated for the complete elimination of the nuclear weapons program. Putting millions of dollars into nuclear programs is completely unnecessary and a waste of taxpayer dollars. She spoke about three activists, including Sister Megan Rice who are now in federal prison because they were able to climb and crawl to a nuclear facility in Oak Ridge, Tennessee and put peace signs up on the fence. Ann also spoke about the little boat, The Golden Rule, which tried to go sailing to the Marshall Islands to prevent the detonation and testing of nuclear weapons. The boat only went five miles from Honolulu where its captain and crew members were arrested. This boat has been found in Humboldt County but badly damaged. The hope now is to renovate the vessel and use it as an educational tool so that children can find out about the horrible effects of the bombs on two Japanese cities.

An energetic performance of drumming was given by enTaiko, a group of elementary and middle school students. Anna Daedalus and Kerry Davis, local artists, unfurled their River Shadow Scroll which highlighted the connections between the Columbia River, Hanford, Fukushima, Hiroshima and nuclear weapons. Special guest was the Consul General of Japan, Hiroshi Furusawa.

This Day of Remembrance provides an opportunity for reflection and action: How are we treating others? How are we treating our home, the planet Earth? What can we do to make the world a better and safer place?

Art Behind Barbed Wire: A Pacific Northwest Exploration of Japanese American Arts and Crafts Created in World War II Incarceration Camps

An exhibition on view at Oregon Nikkei Legacy Center
July 12 - October 19, 2014

Please join us for a travelling exhibition from the Japanese Cultural and Community Center of Washington’s Northwest Nikkei Museum which features arts and crafts gathered from former internees, their families, and the greater Pacific Northwest community. Largely made from scrap and found materials, this powerful collection is a testament to the spirit, strength, and creativity of Japanese Americans who created beauty in the harshest of physical and human conditions. The voices and humanity of those unjustly deprived of their civil liberties are remembered through their art created behind barbed wire.
